Terminated Auto Dealers Have One Month To Decide

(Lansing, MI) -- Legislation signed last week by President Obama provides about two-thousand terminated General Motors and Chrysler dealerships the chance to submit their case to an independent arbitrator. About two-thousand General Motors and Chrysler Dealerships were told they'd have to shut down as the two automakers maneuvered their way through bankruptcy earlier this year. According to Scott Watkins with Michigan's Anderson Economic Group, some of these dealers may now get a reprieve.

The automakers have until January 15th to let dealerships know how it was decided that they would close. Then the dealers have ten days to decide whether to fight it. Watkins estimates that about a thousand dealerships will take that option.
